Children enjoy feeding the goats from Totally Alive farm as Woodberry Down's residents celebrate the estate's 10-year milestone at its annual fun day

WOODBERRY Down Estate residents came together for their annual fun day on 16 June to celebrate the estate's 10-year milestone.

For the first time, the fun day was held overlooking the New River and Woodberry Down's two reservoirs at the new five-acre Spring Park – part of more than 50 acres of parkland, wetlands and open water at Woodberry Down. With 5,500 new homes coming to the estate over 20 years, it is the largest single-site regeneration project in Europe. The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "We've achieved a huge amount working with the Woodberry Down community and our partners over the last 10 years, and bringing residents together in one of the beautiful new green spaces we've created here is a perfect way to celebrate this." See 6-7.

NEARLY 400 homes would be built or refurbished in the last phase of the Council's award-winning regeneration of Stoke Newington's Kings Crescent Estate under plans submitted this month.

Subject to planning permission, the proposals would see 219 new homes built directly by the Council and 174 existing homes upgraded – with more than half for genuinely affordable Council social rent or shared ownership.

Council officers and architects have spent nearly a year working with local councillors and existing tenants and leaseholders on designs for the project, which will also see better public spaces, new play areas and community facilities.

The plans follow the completion of the first phase of the scheme in 2017, which saw 273 new homes built and 101 existing homes refurbished with new balconies and winter gardens. The project was named one of the top 50 new buildings in the UK by the Royal Institute of British Architects, as well as winning the Mayor of London's Prize at the New London Awards last year.

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "The new and refurbished homes we've already built at Kings Crescent have won plaudits from around the world, but I'm most proud that new and existing families love them and are using the amazing public spaces.

"Our latest proposals aim to build on the successes of our work so far – with hundreds more stunning, high-quality homes, spaces for children to play and for the local community to come together.

"I'm proud that Hackney is building new genuinely affordable Council homes for the people that need them most."

The Council's Planning Committee is expected to consider the application later this year. Subject to permission being granted, work would start next year and be completed in 2023.

The project is part of more than 2,000 homes, three schools and a leisure centre being started or completed by the Council across Hackney by 2022 – with more than half of new homes for social rent or shared ownership. The majority of these homes and facilities are built and managed directly by the Council, on its own land.

council housing.

Cllr Claydon McKenzie, Cabinet Member for Housing Services, said: "The free Our Homes Festival Shoreditch is a chance for residents of the area to have fun, get creative, mix with their neighbours, and talk to Council staff about how we can help and support them in a wide range of ways, from managing their property, to health and wellbeing advice, and job opportunities.

FROM pots to provenance, the Hackney residents highlighted in the Queen's Birthday Honours list this month perfectly illustrate the borough's inventiveness and creativity.

Ceramicist Kate Malone was awarded an MBE for her services to UK ceramic art. Kate, who is also a judge on BBC2's 'The Great Pottery Throw Down', is known for her rich, bright glazes and large sculptural forms.

Her work, produced in a studio on the Balls Pond Road, is held in public collections including the Victoria and Albert Museum and Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

"Chuffed or what!" she tweeted, after the news was released. "What an honour, which I know will inspire me to keep shouting 'hooray for clay'. And now I'll have to behave (in public). What ever shall I wear?"

Also awarded an MBE was Jessica Baker, founder of Provenance. The web-based platform allows both retailers and customers to see where a product comes from, following the production chain from origins to sale.

"Behind every product is a complex chain of people and places and that's a really important part of why people buy things," Jessica explained in 2017.

Adding: "Provenance is all about making that It's great to live in a creative, techy borough like Hackney – it's a growing hub of innovation and collaboration information transparent to shoppers but also to businesses all along the supply chain."

In 2016, for example, Provenance's technology tackled human rights abuses in the Indonesian fishing industry, and Jessica aims to bring such transparency to over 1,000 food and drinks businesses by 2025.

She said: "It is an honour and privilege to have been awarded an MBE. The whole Provenance team work tirelessly on a joint mission to see an improvement in global supply chains – driving a change towards transparency, accountability and sustainability.

"We are at the beginning of a very long road, but there is a growing movement which is very much taking us in the right direction.

Hackney plugs into Tech Week

THE borough fulfilled its reputation as 'Tech City' during London Tech Week, from 10 to 14 June, by hosting a series of events for residents and businesses.

This included the London Office of Technology and Innovation Digital Apprenticeship Programme workshop to support the development of digital skills across London's diverse communities.

Another highlight was the 'Be Local. Act Global' conference in partnership with Here East, Plexal and Texas-based Capital Factory, which highlighted the opportunities available for local small businesses to trade worldwide without moving out of the borough.

Children gear up for annual Bike around the Borough

OVER 1,000 pupils will take to Hackney's streets by bike on 27 June as Bike around the Borough returns for the ninth year.

More than 40 schools are due to take part in the mass bike ride, which has previously set the world record for the highest number of people cycling in a continuous 'bike bus'.

On the day, children will gather at Hackney Downs, and then cycle to Clissold Park, where the bike bus will pick up more participants, before heading on to London Fields, past Hackney Town Hall and back to Hackney Downs.

The day aims to promote cycling among Hackney school children, giving them the chance to practise the skills they have learned through the national standard for cycle training and to help them see how easy it is to travel around by bike.

Following the ride, there will be a summer cycling celebration. The event, open to the public, will run from 3.30pm to 8.30pm.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Waste, Transport and Public Realm, said: "We have been running Bike around the Borough for eight years, and every time it gets better!

"For the first year, we're also excited to announce that, just like the recent Hackney Half Marathon, we'll be eliminating single-use plastic bottles from the event, significantly reducing its ecological footprint."

RESIDENTS were bowled over by the play at Hackney's Windrush Cricket celebration on 8 June.

The event saw over 75 players from Stoke Newington Cricket Club, North London Muslims Cricket Club and opposing teams taking part in a series of matches alongside Caribbean afternoon tea and activities for families.

As the sun shone over the newly built Hackney Marshes Pavilion, children as young as five took part in intergenerational cricket sessions with their grandparents, organised by Badu Sports.

Nana Badu, who runs Badu Sports, said: "I think it's important to get people along to events like this, where they can get out of their comfort zone, have fun and see a place where they belong in society."

"Today is really inclusive, and families have come out to spend time together and feel like they are really part of the borough."

Alongside taking up the bat, attendees were treated to a Caribbean afternoon tea and reminiscence session with Hackney Museum, which started conversations about the game and life in Hackney in the 1960s and 70s.

One woman called Gloria Richards talked about how her father used to take her along to cricket matches every weekend on Hackney Marshes and all around the country, and her famous cricketer cousin, West Indies fast bowler Andy Roberts (pictured below).

The event was part of the Council's Windrush Generations Festival, which aims to educate, commemorate and celebrate the outstanding contribution of the Windrush generation and their descendants.

Cllr Feryal Clark, Deputy Mayor, said: "As the Cricket World Cup captures the nation's attention, it's great to channel that excitement into fun outdoor play for families, and use our lovely new Hackney Marshes Pavilion for this amazing community event.

"The event honoured the legacy that the Windrush generation has left for cricket here in Hackney, giving young people the chance to learn the game, and older people time to talk about their memories and share their stories of cricket."

Response to Judicial Review judgment on Hackney Today

LAST year Hackney and Waltham Forest councils brought a judicial review against the Secretary of State for Housing, Communities and Local Government, after he issued directions ordering them to stop publishing Hackney Today and Waltham Forest News fortnightly. The case was heard last month and the judge has now ruled in favour of the Government. The councils are planning a joint appeal.

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "We are deeply disappointed with the outcome of this judicial review, but I want to assure residents that, whatever happens, we will do our best to make sure that they can continue to access the information they have received through Hackney Today. "Hackney Today is one of our most popular and cost-effective ways to communicate with, and empower, our diverse communities. We know it's especially valued by our older residents, young families, social housing tenants, those in receipt of benefits, and people with disabilities, and a lifeline to many of the 11 per cent of our residents who aren't online."

"The Government wanted us to stop publishing fortnightly because its guidelines recommend councils not publish newspapers more than quarterly. At the same time, councils are required to place statutory notices, such as planning applications and road closures, in local newspapers, often at great expense. We are able to use Hackney Today for our statutory notices, saving us thousands of pounds a week, which we can then spend on services and improving the borough."

"Taking legal action was not something we did lightly. Our priority has always been about informing residents and making the most of our reduced funding, and we believe the strong case for fortnightly publication of Hackney Today justified this judicial review and our request to appeal."

"We have been in dispute with the Government since 2011. Being able to publish statutory notices during that time has saved us hundreds of thousands of pounds. This far outweighs the legal costs so far of £33,000, and the estimated £7,000 appeal."

"Our dispute has never been about competing with the excellent Hackney Gazette and Hackney Citizen. These play a great role in the borough and are important in holding public services and politicians to account, among many other things."

"However, there is no genuine equivalent to Hackney Today. As well as promoting information about Council services, policies, consultations, campaigns and opportunities, it provides space for voluntary and community groups to promote their events, promotes the work of our local NHS, schools and other public bodies, and highlights the wonderful diversity at the heart of Hackney. It has been invaluable in supporting people during austerity, informing them about complex issues and promoting community cohesion.

"It celebrates Hackney in all its forms, shining a light on unsung heroes and brilliant local initiatives... the things that make Hackney such a special place."

MORE than 650 residents marked a milestone at Woodberry Down Fun Day on 16 June as the transformation of the estate reached its 10th year.

To celebrate, the event was the first to be held overlooking the New River and Woodberry Down's two reservoirs at the new five-acre Spring Park, and saw residents enjoy jazz, songs from Disney's 'Frozen', workshops and a pop-up farm.

The annual celebration – organised by the Council alongside partners Berkeley Homes, Notting Hill Genesis, Woodberry Down Community Organisation and Manor House Development Trust – was an opportunity for the estate's new and long-term residents to come together as Woodberry Down undergoes big changes.

With 5,500 new homes coming to the estate over 20 years, it is the largest single-site regeneration project in Europe.

Long-term resident, K.I., said: "It's been brilliant seeing all the changes that have been taking place at Woodberry Down, and today has been a great day for the kids and families to come out and enjoy themselves."

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, added: "We've achieved a huge amount working with the Woodberry Down community and our partners over the last 10 years, and bringing residents together in one of the beautiful new green spaces we've created here is a perfect way to celebrate this."

"I'm proud that, alongside building thousands of homes directly ourselves, we're also working in partnership with housing associations and others to enable thousands more genuinely affordable homes to be built in Hackney, while creating new opportunities and facilities for the community."

SHOULD YOU IMMUNISE YOUR CHILD?

Immunisation uptake in our community is very low, which has led to the recent measles outbreak. Immunising on time is the best way to protect your child and your community.

1 MEASLES IS A SERIOUS DISEASE

Measles starts with cold-like symptoms, but a rash then develops. Common complications such as pneumonia can become serious and make your child very unwell. Measles can also cause deafness, brain damage and even death.

2 IMMUNISATIONS ARE SAFE

Immunisations have been tested repeatedly before they are given. A lot of research has been carried out to ensure that they are safe and effective to protect you and your child against deadly diseases. There is no evidence that the MMR vaccine causes autism or other disabilities.

3 PROTECT YOUR CHILD AT THE RIGHT TIME

We need to give immunisations at exactly the right age so that your child is protected. Leaving it too late, even by a month, puts your child at risk. Please attend immunisation appointments on time when you are invited by your surgery.

4 IMMUNISATION SIDE-EFFECTS ARE COMMON AND MILD

Minor side-effects are common after immunisations such as fever, pain and redness around the injection site, but these can be controlled and will get better. They are not usually serious.

5 IMMUNISATIONS WILL NOT OVERLOAD YOUR CHILD'S BODY

Every day, a child's immune system deals with over 10,000 different viruses and bacteria when they eat or play. Giving a few inactive viruses in the form of a vaccination will not overwhelm your child, but it will protect them.

6 BOOK YOUR IMMUNISATION WITH YOUR GP NOW!

Contact your GP surgery today to book in for your immunisations.

Appointments are also available at the Lubavitch centre.

Breath of fresh air

The Council has received funding to restrict polluting traffic on Stoke Newington Church Street, subject to engagement with local people

FUNDING worth £500,000 has been secured by the Council to promote walking and cycling and restrict polluting traffic on Stoke Newington Church Street.

The money, awarded from the Mayor of London's Air Quality Fund, could see electric charging points introduced alongside anti-idling measures at the A10 junction with Church Street, a cargo bike hire scheme and improvements to public spaces to encourage walking and cycling.

Subject to engagement with local people, the bid will also investigate introducing measures to restrict polluting traffic on Stoke Newington Church Street.

Alongside the bid for Stoke Newington, the Council, in partnership with Islington and Tower Hamlets councils, has also secured funding to establish five new satellite hubs for its award-winning Zero Emissions Network (ZEN).

The ZEN will expand to Hackney Central and Stoke Newington in the borough, and Clerkenwell, Whitechapel and Canary Wharf in neighbouring boroughs. It will expand its existing support to help residents and businesses reduce their emissions, introduce six new cargo bike sharing stations and expand the reach of its Scooter Switch programme to help delivery riders switch from mopeds to e-bikes.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Waste, Transport and Public Realm, said: "As a leader in tackling London's poor air quality, we are keen to explore any funding option that helps us to deliver even more to tackle the public health hazard of the capital's toxic air. We are thrilled to have been awarded funding for these two projects, which, in addition to our Liveable Neighbourhood work in Hackney Central, will help to tackle poor air quality in two of the borough's town centres.

"We're going to be engaging with people in Hackney Central and Stoke Newington over the summer about their town centres, which will inform our plans for each area."

Recycling Rewards scheme reaches the end of the road

HACKNEY Recycling Rewards programme, which gives discounts and offers at local shops for residents who report their recycling, has closed after three years due to Government funding coming to an end.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Waste, Transport and Public Realm, said: "Like many councils, we were awarded funding from the Government to roll-out the Recycling Rewards programme and, while it has proved popular, with over 25 per cent of Hackney residents signed-up, it hasn't improved our recycling rate as much as we'd have liked.

"I'd urge residents to keep recycling to reduce the impact our waste has on the planet. As well as Zero Waste Hubs, our Estates Recycling Project and eliminating single-use plastics from Council buildings, we're working on a number of additional exciting and ambitious projects to prevent waste and boost recycling, which we'll be announcing soon."

Deputy Mayor Cllr Feryal Clark with charities who formerly benefited from the rewards scheme, as well as residents

Mayor tells Government: brands must pick up tab for non-recyclable plastic

THE Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, has urged the Government to make sure brands that sell or produce goods in plastic packaging pick up the bill for the waste they cause.

Speaking to MPs in the Housing, Communities and Local Government Select Committee's inquiry into the implications of the Government's waste strategy, he urged the Government to strengthen its proposals to make brands that produce packaging responsible for the costs of managing packaging waste.

He told the Committee that the industry should 'get its act in order' by 'making sure that they are not producing packaging that isn't recyclable', while saying that the principles outlined in the strategy to make producers pay for the costs of managing waste were 'positive'.

The Mayor also called for any changes to local waste collections in the waste strategy to be fully funded by central Government.

He said: "We need to fundamentally rethink how we approach waste – not only by increasing recycling, but by drastically reducing the materials we produce and consume.

"While we are broadly supportive of the Government's proposal to make producers pay for the costs of managing packaging waste, we're asking them to make sure that the full costs of processing waste are incorporated into the strategy.

"This will encourage producers to radically reduce the amount of waste they produce by ensuring there's a price to pay if they continue to flood our planet with unnecessary packaging."

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

hackneypeople

BORN and raised in Australia, Peter Hughes knew he wanted to be a teacher aged eight. Even then, 'maths made sense'.

Peter spent much of his childhood in the Australian Outback attending a small school with 10 pupils in each year group – a far cry from the 4,000 students that have been under his care for the past five years as the head of Mossbourne Federation.

A self-confessed introvert, Peter never planned to move halfway around the world but, one day, in pursuit of a new adventure he sold all his belongings and bought a one-way ticket to London.

He says: "I arrived on the morning of 24 January, 2001. I hopped on the Thames Link and headed to a hostel in King's Cross with no job and no plans."

After contacting an agency and securing some supply work, 26-year-old Peter secured job offers from two inner-city London schools within two days of landing.

He decided to take a maths teacher role at a school in Victoria, but it wasn't what he expected.

He says: "The whole system was different to what I was used to, students would stand up and leave the class, I had no idea where they were going and no-one else seemed too concerned."

After teaching in some of London's biggest secondary schools and qualifying as an advanced skills maths teacher, Peter was placed at Mossbourne as part of a national 'Future Leaders' programme, which identifies potential headteacher talent at an early age and provides support and training.

In 2014, when the then Principal, Sir Michael Wilshaw, left Mossbourne to become the chief inspector of schools at Ofsted, Peter stepped into the top job.

He says: "Mossbourne is the realisation of Sir Clive Bourne's dream to provide the children of Hackney with an outstanding education."

"The school transformed from a failing inner-city state school – known as Hackney Downs – by Sir Clive Bourne, the sponsor and chair of governors, and Sir Michael Wilshaw, the appointed headteacher, to one of the best schools in the country. This was a huge responsibility as a new headteacher."

Peter admits Sir Michael Wilshaw's shoes were big to fill. He says: "The Federation was rapidly expanding just as I took on the role. That year we were in the process of launching Mossbourne Community Academy's sister school, Mossbourne Victoria Park."

But despite the responsibility, he was up for the challenge. He says: "When I arrived at Mossbourne I instantly knew it had a special atmosphere – I had found my spiritual home."

Since then, under Peter's leadership, the Mossbourne Federation has become home to two primary schools, two secondary schools and a sixth form.

Mossbourne results continue to be some of the best in the country and opportunities available to students rival private schools.

"I'm incredibly proud of the opportunities we are able to give our students, we're an inner-city school in London but we want to make sure our students have access to the best," he says.

After receiving thousands of applicants from parents wanting places for their children, it is no wonder that the school had to change to a lottery system admissions process, to allow for a fairer process that meant wealthier families could not buy a house nearby to guarantee admission.

But for Peter, it's not only the results that matter – he is invested and committed to creating the best possible experience for his pupils.

He learnt at a young age that the little things do matter and that's where he believes you can make a difference.

He says: "My teachers inspired me, I still remember all my maths teachers. I got on with them and appreciated how they created a calm environment for teaching while ensuring they have a spark and enthusiasm for the subject.

"The Mossbourne model has been carefully planned to ensure that students feel safe, do well but also thrive in the arts and creative subjects."

Music, art, sport and drama are at the forefront for students wishing to pursue careers in these fields. For example, the rowing programme enables students to train twice a day and gives them access to national competitions mostly attended by private schools.

Peter says: "Rowing is not a sport put on for many of the country's state school pupils. Mossbourne is ideally placed to provide the sport, thanks to a liaison with London Youth Rowing and its proximity to the Docklands.

"The Mossbourne team have beaten some private schools well known at rowing. It's a fantastic achievement and many of our rowers have gone on to row for world-famous universities, including Oxford and Cambridge."

Mossbourne students also have access to a medical bursary, cadet scheme and architecture society all designed to give students access to trips, talks and work experience opportunities that would otherwise not be available to them.

According to Peter, teachers and staff working at the Federation collectively understand the Mossbourne model and are on board with the way it works.

He says: "It is challenging, but in return we get calm, productive students who turn up to work."

Before anything else, Peter considers himself a maths teacher. So, last September, he took on a Year 11 GCSE Maths class.

He says: "I absolutely loved teaching Year 11 this year, I haven't stood in front of a class in five years and to be able to do it again was challenging in terms of balancing all my responsibilities, but it was very rewarding."

Looking ahead, Peter anticipates that cuts to Government funding will be challenging for the Federation, but he remains positive and excited for the future of his schools.

He says: "As long as parents are proud to send their children to Mossbourne that's when I know I am doing a good job."

The Hackney 'cricketeers', who are helping out in the Cricket World Cup, are attendees at the Lord's Taverners' Super 1s club

S EVEN Hackney residents have been picked for the 2019 Cricket World Cup.

George Anderson, Onye Nwanka, Adam Hollingsworth, Sebastian Odiakasigbue, Terrance Frank, Richard Barnes and Joe Spencer will act as 'cricketeer' volunteers during the tournament, which is taking place in England and Wales, and runs until 14 July.

All seven are regular attendees at the Lord's Taverners' Super 1s Hackney hub. Based at Clissold Leisure Centre, the programme gives disabled people aged 12 to 25 years old the chance to play cricket, socialise and enjoy the benefits of an active lifestyle.

“It will be a fantastic experience for them, to be engaging with people and playing a part in making the World Cup a success”

The Hackney 'cricketeers' will help out in spectator services during the England v Australia World Cup clash at Lord's on 25 June. They will also be on-hand at the Cricket World Cup Fanzone in Trafalgar Square on 12 July.

Lord's Taverners disability cricket project manager, Mark Bond, said: "It will be a fantastic experience for them, to be engaging with people and playing a part in making the World Cup a success, as well as developing their confidence, leadership and communication skills, which are all key life skills.

"We're really proud of the guys, and I'm sure they'll do a fantastic job!"

Launched in 2013, Super 1s was initially introduced in four London boroughs before expanding to all 32, as well as to counties across the UK.

Hackney Super 1s coach, Gary Horsman, said: "It's about more than just playing cricket. Yes, it's a cricket programme, but most people realise it's about personal development. It's really important."

News in brief

Noah Williams dives for Gold

NOAH Williams took home gold at the 2019 British Diving Championships in Edinburgh earlier this month. The 19-year-old from Hoxton competed against some of the best divers in the country at the championships. A knockout fifth round dive, consisting of four-and-a-half forward somersaults gained a massive 98 points. His sixth, and final dive, two-and-a-half somersaults with two-and-a-half twists, meant that he achieved a new personal best (PB) of 509.65 to take the Gold medal in the individual Mens 10m.

Noah also gained a Gold medal in synchronised 10m alongside fellow diver Matthew Dixon.

Straight off the platform, Noah said: "My last PB was set when I was 16, just over two-and-a-half years ago; since then I've learnt a lot of new dives so my scoring hasn't always been that great. But I've finally started to consolidate those dives and it's finally paid off today with a massive PB and the first time over 500 points."

Noah is a previous winner of a Hackney Sports Award. He won silver medals in the synchro platform event at the European Championships and Commonwealth Games.

E-Kidz dance funding pays off

HACKNEY dance group E-Kidz brought home four trophies last month after participating in the prestigious UDO European Street Dance Championship in the Netherlands.

E-Kidz, Concorde Youth Hub's resident dance group, was awarded £4,500 from the Hackney Youth Opportunity Fund to pay the entry fee for the competition, purchase costumes and cover accommodation and travel.

Following their trip, E-Kidz said: "We loved every minute of our trip. It was hard at times but all our training and rehearsals paid off!"

The Hackney Youth Opportunity Fund is managed through the Council's Young Hackney team. It awards successful groups of young people with grants worth up to £5,000. Young people can apply for grants to run a project, workshop, trip or activity of their choosing.

Young people interested in applying need to be aged between eight and 19 years old and live, work or study in Hackney. Deadline is 27 September.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food for Life programme supports anyone in Hackney who wants to learn about affordable healthy eating and cooking. This recipe came from volunteers at our cookery group for stroke survivors.

The dish is gluten and egg free and full of fresh and zingy flavours. It's quick and easy to prepare and keeps for two to three days in the fridge. It's great served by itself for a light meal, or goes well with grilled chicken, fish or tofu.

Have your say on the future of Hackney's children's centres

RESIDENTS are being urged to share their experiences of Hackney's children's centres and how they could be improved in the future.

The Council wants to hear from parents and carers who have used, currently use or may use children's centres in the future, to find out about the services they value most and ideas for how to make them better.

There are 21 children's centres across the borough, offering a wide range of services for expectant parents and families with young children, including early education and child care, 'stay and play' activities, parenting support, child and family health services, advice and training, ESOL (English for speakers of other languages) and employment support.

Responses will also feed into an ongoing piece of work to help make efficiency savings. Despite the Council's central Government grant being cut by nearly half, to date the Council has protected children's centres by finding savings elsewhere. However, with few options

Win tickets to see 'The Glass Menagerie'

'THE Glass Menagerie' may be Tennessee William's best loved and known play, but a new production at the Arcola blows off the cobwebs and creates something new. Sure, it's still 1937. Austerity is still biting in St Louis. Sibling love and family disfunction is still simmering and the Wingfield family remain impoverished. But they are also, under the direction of Femi Elufowaju Jr, black. This swap might sound simple, but it subtly changes so much of the play. As Elufowaju Jr has pointed out, the majority of Tennessee William's stories are set in the South, yet African American experience is pushed to the sidelines. This is a production that finally puts that experience centre stage.

And - thanks to winning performances from Lesley Ewen, Michael Abubakar and others – it thrives there.

'The Glass Menagerie' runs until 13 July at the Arcola Theatre. Tickets range from £10 to £26. To find out more and to book tickets, visit:

www.arcolatheatre.com

Hackney Today is giving away five pairs of tickets to 'The Glass Menagerie' at the Arcola Theatre. Introversion Immersion

Until 13 Jul, Hang-Up Gallery, 81 Stoke Newington Rd, N16 8AD

EVER contemplated a digital detox, or worried that your closest relationship is with your phone? This could be the exhibition for you.

'Introversion Immersion' is the second solo-show by artist Tim Fishlock to run at the Stoke Newington gallery Hang-Up. This time, a site-specific installation takes over the entire downstairs 'bunker'. Seventy-two light boxes range from floor to ceiling, creating an enclosed room of words and colours ('seduce', 'provoke', 'upgrade'...) and flooding the senses with the narcissism of the online world. Upstairs, a series of six new paintings entitled 'Satisfactory Living' are hung alongside a heavy punchbag, stitched from rich leather and appliqué with the word 'ME'. For a show so flooded in colour and light, there's a lot of dark humour at work here. Tim Fishlock's 'Introversion Immersion' runs until 13 July at the Hang-Up gallery. The exhibition is free, and artworks are on sale. For more information visit: hanguppictures.com

A SERIES of events took place across Hackney to mark this year's Carers Week, and celebrate unpaid carers in the borough, from 10 to 16 June.

Shoreditch Library held a 'Health and Wellbeing' event on 12 June, offering carers information and activities for relaxation, self-care and meditation.

St Joseph's Hospice held a carers' 'Wellbeing Day' offering yoga, massage, mindfulness, exercise and crafts on 12 June, while Carers are the Bedrock held a carers' 'Activity Day' at St Joseph's on 13 June.

There are around 18,000 carers living in Hackney, of all ages, providing different levels of unpaid care and support each week for their families, relatives, friends or neighbours because of illness, disability and old age. Nationally, one in 10 people of all ages are carers, providing £132 billion worth of care.

Cllr Feryal Clark, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care, Leisure and Parks, said: "In the absence of the social care green paper, local authorities continue to work with carers to deliver the best for our residents.

"Carers play an important role in their local communities, supporting some of our most vulnerable residents, often unseen and unheard. Events like the ones offered during Carers Week are a lifeline giving people the opportunity to come together for a few hours of respite."

A celebration tea party event was also held for Shared Lives Carers to mark Shared Lives Week from 17 to 21 June.

There are currently 15 Shared Lives Carers in Hackney who support 19 vulnerable people with learning disabilities or mental health issues to live in the community.

Monserrat Rodriguez, from Clapton Pond, has been a Shared Lives Carer for 21 years. She provides a home for James and Paul.

She said: "I really enjoy this. James and Paul live with my family so they are part of our family network."

are recruited, trained and supported by Hackney's Shared Lives team to become a Shared Lives Carer. They are then matched with a vulnerable person from the borough and paid for the support and care they provide.

Placements can be long-term or short-term and are flexible to allow people to provide care for as long as they are able to.

News in brief

Homerton Hospital wins top award for its quality of care

HOMERTON Hospital has won an award that celebrates the UK's best patient care.

The CHKS Top Hospitals awards, which took place on 12 June, celebrate hospitals across the UK that are excelling in different ways.

Homerton University Trust won the quality of care award, a prize that measures excellence according to criteria including the length of time patients stay in hospital, the rate of emergency re-admissions and patient outcomes.

Swim masterclasses available

OLYMPIC Silver medallist Keri-anne Payne hosted an open water swimming masterclass at West Reservoir Centre on 6 June.

The 22 swimmers who took part were given tuition on how to improve their technique and confidence in the water. The session included a practical session in the reservoir and a classroom element where Keri-anne shared her experiences of swimming at the top level.

The event was used to launch the centre's brand new open water 'Swim Doctor' sessions, where swimmers will receive advice from expert coaches on how to improve their technique and fitness level.

Lung health check for over 50s

THOUSANDS of people from City and Hackney are being offered a free lung health check as part of the UK's largest ever lung cancer screening study.

The study, called SUMMIT, will recruit up to 100,000 people, aged between 50 and 77, who meet specific criteria, which includes reference to their smoking history. The study has two aims. Run by University College London Hospitals in partnership with UCL, it will detect lung cancer early, when the chance of successful treatment and survival is greater, and help to develop a blood test for the early detection of cancers.

The Art of Islamic Pattern: A Living Tradition set to open at Homerton Hospital

A NEW exhibition of Islamic art is set to open at Homerton Hospital next month.

Hackney Wick artists Richard Henry and Adam Williamson have been teaching students the skills in Islamic art.

The courses have covered geometric design, arabesque floral motifs, and traditional craft practice. The works presented in this show, comprising of paintings, ceramics, woodwork and works on silk, have all been produced by students.

Homerton art curator, Shaun Caton, said:

"Islamic art is renowned for its use of exquisite designs, which resonate with the most harmonious patterns found within nature and the cosmos.

"With the focus upon unity and harmony, rediscovering and recreating these designs can be a deeply meditative experience.

"While there has been considerable interest in recent decades in the therapeutic potential of visual art, we believe this is the first time a show dedicated to Islamic art has been presented within a London hospital setting."

'The Art of Islamic Pattern: A Living Tradition' is set to run from 2 July to 4 November.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, email: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Clare Potter.

ONE thing that strikes the viewer looking at photographs taken by Gibson's studio in the 1960s is how many sports and social clubs there are.

The people of Hackney have always been a sociable bunch. The men of the fishing club pictured here have found themselves some splendid headgear, while all generations of the Dalston Pigeon Club seem to be having a great time.

The Rotary Club also features heavily in the collection, including this photograph of a students' dinner, probably because Ron Gibson was a Rotarian and former president of the Rotary Club of Hackney.

If you recognise anyone in these images, please contact Hackney Archives.

Based in Dalston, Hackney Archives is carrying out a two-year project to digitise images from Gibson's studio so that they can be shared with local people at events around the borough and online.

A key part of the project involves interviewing people who appear in the photographs so that their stories can be preserved as part of the history of Hackney.

You can see more photographs from Gibson's studio on display at Hackney Museum, on Hackney Archives' Facebook page and at: flickr.com/photos/hackney_archives

 Hackney Archives will be featuring photographs from the Gibson collection in each edition of Hackney Today. If you recognise anyone in the photos, call: 020 8356 8925; or email: archives@hackney.gov.uk
